Hi, I'm writing in support of the proposed design for 2925 E. Madison. I want Seattle to be more affordable and welcoming to families of all income levels, which means we need to build taller buildings with more units and more parking. Additionally, the retail portion of this mixed-use building promises a welcome amenity to the Madison Valley area: a grocery store that would be used by many families in the vicinity.

As a resident of the nearby Central District and longtime customer of City People's Garden Store, I admit I'm sad to see it go, but I'm glad that it will be replaced by a building that offers to house 77 new residents in the area. We need more of this type of development all over Seattle, and we need it now, so thank you for expediting the approval of this building.
