Dear Seattle Public Resource Center,

I am just so heartbroken at every update that comes across on this building proposal. As are all of my immediate and distant neighbors, the entire neighborhood, and to be honest, the natives of Seattle with this giant and out of place retail/residential building and all of the newly constructed and overcrowded (and horribly ugly designed) homes and buildings getting approved and absolutely ruining our once lovely city. I'm ashamed and saddened by the authorities who are just wrecking our home. Who would ever approve such rapid growth if it weren't only about the money? Very sad.

The natives that have grown up here with their families for generations are being squeezed by these developers building out every square inch of the city and its surroundings. Why is that allowed? What is the limit? We chose to move to the Madison Valley area because it feels like a neighborhood, it's very quiet. People like that. How will we all get around in the disgustingly heavy traffic caused by all of the newly transplanted people and the new homes they're occupying that are literally squeezing the life out of the city?

We don't deserve to have a local and lovely and established nursery in our neighborhood? Money for these contractors and their construction businesses is more important than having a gem of a nursery to visit? It's the little things in life. The city of Seattle needs to be reigned in and put a stop to destroying our city.

If this isn't the correct department to voice these human concerns on behalf of us all, please do point me in the right direction. I'm just so sad at what you're doing to our home.

Sincerely,

Alexis
